ASI Events presents Alison Chadwick's Polaris In Motion in UU Gallery

SAN LUIS OBISPO - The University Union Art Gallery will showcase the works of Cal Poly photography student Alison Chadwick with a new show, Polaris in Motion, opening Friday May 2.

Associated Students Inc. Events is sponsoring the show, and will host a reception for the artist at 6 p.m. Friday featuring appetizers and live entertainment. Admission is free.

Chadwick, a senior, is one of the top photography students at Cal Poly. Her show, Polaris in Motion, captures the beauty and dynamism of the human body, all while bringing about the awareness of dance as an art form in the community. Chadwick has been dedicated to both dance and art since she was a young girl. The show, which is also her senior project, is the culmination of her insights into dance and photography.

Polaris In Motion is intended to show the audience how a moment of stillness can be just as powerful as several moments of action.. Kevin Barden, student supervisor of the UU Gallery says, "Alison's show is very moving, because you get the chance to see Alison through her work."
